

Earth Balance – Food for a Plant-based Lifestyle

Based in Boulder, CO, Earth Balance started out as a little company with one product, their non-GMO, vegetable-based buttery spread. It became the country's most popular vegan spread, overtaking the competition in sales and popularity in relatively short order. With the rise in veganism and given their surprising surge to the top with their buttery spreads, it was no surprise when Earth Balance began to expand their offerings to include even more veggie-based items. Today they produce assorted snack foods and baked goods exclusively for the vegan market, as well as vegan macaroni products like their immensely popular mac & "cheese" dinner.

With everything from baking sticks and nut butters to snacks and more, Earth Balance is committed to food that's not just good for cooking, baking, snacking and spreading, it's made with the Earth in mind. Their philosophy:

Plant-Made. Basically, it means we make things from plants. But it means other things, too, like integrity, mindfulness and making a positive impact. We're committed to that kind of stuff and we know you are, too. So our products are made with sustainably sourced ingredients whenever possible, and we never use GMOs. And we always strive to use recyclable packaging. – earthbalance.com*
